Drew Moore

Pro EMS Director of Support Services

I began my career in EMS after a vendor asked if I would be interested in being an ambulance technician. I said if it has an engine, and the company really values what task it performs I want to repair it.

As I transformed this company's fleet services department into a model for the entire state, I realized that I could make an impact in this industry. I now am not only ASE master certified auto and diesel. I am one of the few EVT certified ambulance technician in Massachusetts. I established and chaired the Mass Ambulance Association fleet services work group. I sat on the CAAS GVS remount work group. As my new role at Pro Director of Support Services developed early in the pandemic, I realized EMS supplies management is mainly about building a great team and vendor relationships. That is what helps me develop every day as the leader of the Pro EMS support services department.
